PRaise THE ROD.

LETTER FROM GEORGE O. BARNES

250 RAWSON ST., ATLANTA, MAY 7, '88.
DEAR INTERIOR:—I heard Bishop Beckwith, the Georgia diocesan, preach yesterday. This is the 3d Southern proprietor of lawn sleeves it has been my good fortune to hear. This "reverend father in God," like the Bishops of Mississippi and Louisiana, is an extempore speaker, full of ready utterance and graceful of manner, withal. He preached in St. Philip's, after confirming 40 candidates, old and young. His address to the confirmands was exceedingly practical and pointed. It was, briefly, this:

The reason there is so much infidelity in the world is because there is so much inconsistent christianity in the Church.

Yet the world is wrong in its reasoning. Says the man who holds himself aloof from the Church: "I see so much that I can't approve in professed christians; they act so wrongly in business matters; they conform so cowardly to unchristian practices; that I will not join a body where they are." Now, however true these charges may be, the conclusion is dishonest; and seen to be such, because in their own avocations they employ no such reasoning. They do not say, "A dishonest man in his banking operations; it is not trade, but swindling he carries on; I will not be a banker." "B is a scoundrel; he lies without stint in selling his goods; I will go out of the dry goods business." If they would not argue this in secular affairs, is it fair to do so in religious matters? But this being true, it is also true that a worldling will continue to be stumbled by what he sees among christians.

I have just returned from a trip to Palestine. I will tell you what I saw in Jerusalem. The "Church of the Holy Sepulchre," built on the spot where legend affirms the body of our Lord was laid after death, belongs to the Latin, Greek, Coptic and Abyssinian christians. A Mohammedan sentinel, with fixed bayonet, has to stand guard over the sacred spot, to keep these christians from cutting each others' throats, when they come to worship where the body of the Prince of Peace once lay. Fancy the thoughts of that Musselman when christians try to convert him to christianity! His answer is, "Don't send missionaries to me; send them to your own people to teach them the knowledge of their own Saviour!"

Pray without ceasing for a consistent, holy, religious life, that "he who runs may read."

I pray you have the "courage of conviction." Fear only to sin. Unbounded fearlessness in all else, while treading the path of duty.

Finally "grow in grace." Never be satisfied without substantial progress—rapid and steady.

I call that a timely and excellent address. Afterwards the good Bishop, being full of Palestine, so lately visited, gave a sketch of his rambles there; very interesting, as a lecture, and with an occasional touch of real eloquence.

Communion afterwards made the service in all three hours. A trial of tediousness to the flesh, but the "Body and Blood" repaid the waiting. But I should gladly have unsaid the Palestinian talk, that any one can read in a hundred books. Allowance must be made for a traveler, however, who naturally thinks his hearers will be delighted with what has so recently charmed him. A great mistake, but a very common one. I have some dear friends who "wear me out" with "When I was in—"

From that I know what is coming. Oh, the weary iteration! I hope I have learned a lesson from it. Who knows himself, though? Perhaps some of my friends have said: "Bro. Barnes makes me weary when he talks of his travels." If so, dear mentor, in kindness tell me of it and let me learn to do better. I have suffered so from others. I would not degenerate into one of these dear bores, if I can help it. Help me, if you see me sliding down the steep declivity; for beyond a certain point the matter becomes irremediable. One goes to the bottom. There is no stopping place.

Bishop Beckwith looks very like my old friend, H. M. Poynter, of the by-gones, which drew me to him immediately. The pulpit was strung with roses, which he scattered once and again, unconsciously, in the fervor of his address. They were not well secured. "Flowers of oratory," emphatically, were these.

St. Philip's has a large choir of boys, dressed in white surplices over black cassocks; well drilled, and with their treble, in chorus, adding much to the musical service. The leader made one blunder, of allowing a boy solo, on a high key. The little fellow did his level best; squealed shrilly and gamely, till his vocal organs failed to respond; went to pieces, and the tittering congregation with it. It was supremely ridiculous, but only a "spot on the sun." I wish these boy choirs were multiplied indefinitely.

Many a splendid preacher has come out of them. It is a grand training school for the youngsters; gives them "something to do" early in life; and is a delightful adjunct to church music. Like Samuel, grided with his little lined epheod, and learning the duties of his after-life in tender years. With this scriptural model I cannot see what possible objection there can be to boy choirs in all our churches.

The Bishop complimented the church on their music, and the praise was just. A cornet led them; and the service began with a march from a room in the front corner of the spacious church, where the boys first sang with closed doors, in full chorus, giving the idea of music in the far distance, very perfectly. Then the doors gradually and slowly opened; keeping up the illusion of a nearer approach; till finally they were thrown wide and the full tide of melody burst out. Then they marched, keeping time and step, down the long aisle to the chancel, followed by Rector and Bishop; still singing harmoniously; and filling right and left took their seats in front of the altar rails, in pews prepared for the choir. When the services were over the same musical march was accomplished; the folding doors gradually closed; and when, as if from the voices of angels, in the distant sky, the faint, but melodious "Amen" seemed whispered from another sphere, the congregation rose and filed silently out, with the hush of voices from a heavenly world upon them. I don't know when I have been more impressed by a little pious action than at St. Philip's. And I thought it lovely and appropriate and as acceptable to the LORD as the whispered or shouted tones of the preacher, which, fine and spontaneous acting, in its turn—what is it, but "stage thunder" employed naturally and piously for holy purposes? And I ask myself, and others, are discord and awkwardness more acceptable to the God of harmony and order, than melody and eloquence in singing and preaching? To ask the question is to answer it.

The Bishop gave St. Philip's a light rap over the knuckles for being in debt on their handsome church. Thusly:

"You can pay it and you ought to pay it. An honest man who can pay his debts will do it. An honest church ought to do what an honest man does. And what is dishonest in a man is dishonest in a church." There he left them, impaled. I thought it was neatly and incisively put. The Bishop talks plainly.

Lectured on the "Identity of the Anglo-Saxon race with the ten lost tribes of Israel," in the Jewish synagogue at 3:30 p. m. to a good audience. More than one in that congregation besides myself, were thoughtful over the anomaly that a Jewish congregation threw open their synagogue doors to one whom they esteemed a gentile, and with whom they differed on a vital point pertaining to salvation; while the doors of every christian church in Atlanta were hermetically sealed to one who agreed with their occupants on every vital point, in the christian faith. I leave the awful fact without comment!

At night closed the services at Concordia Hall, which is engaged this week, and unobtainable. We leave for lack of a place to preach in. Atlanta is poor in halls; court-house repairing; Opera-House too expensive; churches bolted and barred. So we move on, after two weeks of great blessing to ourselves and others. Praise the LORD for directing us hitherward, Gallatin, Tenn., is our next point, D. V.

Ever in Jesus, GEO. O. BARNES.

The editor has received the following letter from Sherman, Texas, which we give as a curiosity:

Boys the Hope of the World.
A nation's most valuable property is its boys. A nation which has poor, weakly, vicious boys will have still weaker, more vicious and untrustworthy men. A country with noble, virtuous, vigorous boys is equally sure of having noble, pious, brave and energetic men. Whatever debases, contaminates or in any way injures the boys of a country saps and undermines the very foundation of the nation's strength and greatness. Save the boys from vice and crime, give them good training physically, mentally and morally and the prosperity of the nation is assured. We can conform this by being temperate in all things.

MT. VERNON, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—B. H. Conn, of Brodhead, has gone to Kansas.

—James Kitts and Joel Anglin, of the Orlando neighborhood, have been at outs for some days on account of Anglin's stock trespassing on Kitts' pasture. The parties met by accident in the woods on Saturday and after quarreling a fight followed, in which clubs were freely used. Kitts left Anglin on the ground for dead and made his escape. Anglin was carried home and found to have a broken arm and rib and several contusions on the head, and is in a precarious condition.

—Joseph H. McKee, son of Dr. McKee, of Pittman, Fla., formerly a citizen of this place, is here on a visit. He has accepted a clerkship at London and will enter upon this in a short time. W. B. Crenshaw, a former civil engineer on the K. C., now located at Cumberland Gap Tunnel, under construction, was here on Sunday. He says the Powell's Valley road will be finished to the Gap within a few months and that the several roads under construction towards that point are making favorable progress.

—A terrible shooting affray took place Friday near Holdam's mill, on the line of Rockcastle and Lincoln counties, between Uriah Albright and John Benges and his two sons. Albright had a lease on some lands belonging to the Lair heirs for cutting timber and taking off tanbark. Benges had moved onto the lands before Albright had finished hauling off the bark, and on going there to take a last load was confronted by the Benges with guns and pistols. They attempted to open fire upon him, but by some means all of their weapons refused to fire, when Albright drew a pistol, a 44 Remington, and began the deadly work. John Benges was shot across the temple, tearing out both eyes. John, Jr., was shot through the breast and shoulder and Younger Benges through the lung. All will die. All the parties were farmers. The Benges' reputation is rather clouded. Albright is a quiet citizen and was never in trouble before.

Cupid's Triumph.

CRAB ORCHARD, May 12.—Last Thursday, long before 1 o'clock, the Christian church was literally packed with relatives and friends, who came to witness the marriage of Mr. Curtis Gover and Miss Maggie Davis, which was performed by Rev. J. B. Gibson in a very beautiful and appropriate manner. The attendants were Prof. C. F. Duvall and Miss Alice Ward; Mr. B. G. Gover and Miss Lillie Thixton; Mr. J. B. Leavell and Miss Mary Thixton and Mr. B. H. Vanhook and Miss Beauregard Stuart. Messrs. J. R. Bailey and Wilson Dillion acted as ushers. Miss Louana James, who was to have played the wedding march, was prevented from doing so on account of her father being very ill. Miss Anna Fish presided at the organ in her stead. The church was artistically and beautifully decorated for the occasion. It was truly a charming scene and the bright lamp lights added greatly to its beauty, day being entirely shut out. Immediately after the ceremony the entire bridal party and many of their friends drove to the depot, where Mr. and Mrs. Gover, accompanied by the first two couples named took the train for Louisville. On the return trip they will visit Mr. and Mrs. John Gover and are expected back here on Monday next. During the ceremony the bride was handsomely attired in an elegant blue cloth traveling suit, with hat and gloves to match. She is one of our loveliest and most attractive young ladies, is endowed with an amiable, joyous disposition and possesses those accomplishments that will make her a true helpmeet and proud indeed ought Mr. Gover to be of the treasure he has won. He has been living here about eight months and is a partner with his cousin, Mr. B. G. Gover, in his large livery stable. He came into our midst a stranger, but by his quiet, gentlemanly conduct and universal kindness to all with whom he came in contact, has gained many friends. That your journey along life's pathway may be prosperous and happy and that your hearts may never beat less happily than on the lovely day that saw you made husband and wife, is the heartfelt wish of the Crab Orchard correspondent and numerous other warm friends.

HUSTONVILLE.

—Powers gave his initial auction Friday p. m. Pitman is winning golden opinions and silver coins and the people are having a free circus.

—Dr. Brown returned from the Medical Association at Cincinnati in good form on Saturday morning. Miss Julia Bradley is just returned from a five-weeks visit to Harrodsburg, and Dadeism is holding a jubilee over the event.

—Mrs. Jeannette Anderson died Wednesday morning, aged over 60 years. She was a member of the Presbyterian church (of which her husband, Geo. B. Anderson, was a ruling elder) more than 40 years. The whole community attended her funeral and sincere mourners followed her to the sepulchre.

—The celebrated bonedust fertilizer, for which Mr. Wm. Harvey, of Somerset, is agent, is being introduced here with considerable zeal and under high testimonials. It gives promise of great gain to the farmer and a jubilee to the persecuted gardener, enriching the soil, founding the cut worm, exterminating the Colorado bug, annihilating the cabbage destroyers and breaking the heart of the surreptitious mole as soon as his inquisitive comes in contact with it. Better send to Harvey for a sack and be joyful in a great deliverance.

—Can you do nothing, Mr. Editor, toward assuaging the unfraternal bitterness that seems to be springing up between Bros. Kendrick and Williams? They are both old enough to avoid polemics. It would probably tend to edification should they lay aside their armor and spend the evening of their days in studying "the things that make for peace." It would surely be more pleasant were they to try to elicit the expression, "Behold how these brethren love one another," and a more fitting introduction to the celestials to go hand in hand.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—Elder Larimore has just closed a meeting at the Chestnut Street Christian church, Louisville, with 64 additions.

—St. Paul's cathedral at Buffalo, N. Y., burned Friday, as the result of an explosion of natural gas. It was valued at $250,000; insurance $60,000.

—At the church meeting Saturday the Baptists by a unanimous vote invited Rev. J. M. Bruce to preach for them during his coming visit on his return from the General Association.

—The Midway church has by a vote of 54 to 4 called Rev. A. S. Moffett to its pastorate, but if his congregation here can prevent it, he will not accept. We have never known a pastor to be more beloved than he, nor none more deservedly so.

—Rev. Dr. E. M. Green and Rev. D. Harvey Glass, assisted by Mr. H. C. Faris, all of Danville, Ky., will be in Somerset on the 20th of this month, that being the third Sunday, to organize the Somerset Presbyterian church. The members have heretofore worshipped with the Pisgah church, 5 miles from town.—[Reporter.]

—The Southern Baptist Convention organized at Richmond, electing Rev. J. P. Boyce, of the Louisville Theological Seminary, president; G. W. Norton treasurer, and W. LaRue Thomas, auditor, also of Louisville. The board reported the number of accessions to the church in the home mission field 7,496 and the cost of the work was $177,753.

—Owing to a throat trouble and general debility, Rev. H. C. Morrison had to close his meeting Sunday night. There were no additions, but we learn that much good was accomplished among the members, who renewed their obligations of better work for the Master's cause. It is a subject of general regret that he could not have remained longer.

—Gov. Hill vetoed the high license bill passed by the New York Assembly.

Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla., was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing cough and running into Consumption in its first stages. He tried many so called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced in flesh, had difficulty in breathing and was unable to sleep. Stanford, April 14, 1888.

W. P. WALTON.

The newspaper and other friends, whose name is Legion, of Col. E. Polk Johnson, managing editor of the Courier-Journal, want to compliment him with the temporary chairmanship of the Lexington convention. The colonel has had much experience in parliamentary bodies, is thoroughly conversant with the rules and coupling as he does good humor with firmness, he will make a presiding officer of which any body of representative men might be proud. Then too he has done yeoman service for the party, without asking or seeking reward, and it would be the graceful and proper thing to acknowledge it by the bestowal of the honor.

We do not believe that Senator Harris parole bill, which was made the law, will work well, at least it has not elsewhere it has been tried. The idea of turning the rascals loose after the very hard time that the Commonwealth has to convict them, will hardly be belished by those who love the enforcement of the law. The commissioners can parole 5 per cent. of the prisoners a year, but none convicted of murder can be paroled until they have served ten years. Under this law a life sentence loses its terror, as it will virtually amount to but a few years if the prisoner behaves himself.

We learn by private underground wire that Col. Emmett G. Logan, the fiery and "impossible" young man, who carries the destiny of the Louisville Times in the hollow of his hand, which member is nearly as large as his foot, is down with a terrible carbuncle on his neck. Thus do we see that punishment sometimes follows sin in this world as it is sure to do in the next. We are sorry for the poor fellow, but he has refused to listen to our exhortations and there is nothing left but for him to grin and bear the consequences of his many sins with what fortitude he can command.

"There seems to be no opposition in this Appellate District to the renomination of Judge Pryor. Nearly every county has instructed for him." This quotation is from the Covington Commonwealth, which recently characterized our statement that Judge Pryor's race was won in advance, as "pure guff," that Judge O'Hara or somebody else was ready to knock the stuffing out of him, or words to that effect. What have you to say now, Br'er Casey? That you do not always know all you think you know, eh?

The democrats could not do a more graceful and deserved act than to make Hon. Henry Watterson a delegate from the State-at-large to the St. Louis convention, by acclamation. He has done more than any other one man in the country for the end all good democrats are now seeking, the reduction of the tariff, and the convention will like honor itself and him by showing in this manner their hearty approbation of his work.

MR. WATTERSON in a prophetic mood says that in addition to the Southern States "Mr. Cleveland will carry of the New England States Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. Of the Western States he will carry Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan, and, perhaps, Illinois. Of the Pacific Coast States, California and Oregon." Why not make the thing unanimous? It begins to look that way now.

The friends of Dr. Pusey here are more than gratified that Gov. Buckner has fully determined to retain him as superintendent of the Anchorage Asylum. He is spoken of as a most competent official and his management shows that he has been faithful to the trust. The governor, who has the levellest head of any man in the State, evinces his usual good sense in retaining him.

AFTER reading the ultra-republican papers, we are forced to the opinion that the greatest objection they can urge against Mr. Fuller, the President's appointee to the chief justiceship, is that he has one of the heaviest moustaches in the country and quotes poetry fluently when making a speech. These are indeed serious objections.

ONE prisoner in the Peru, Ind., jail kicked another to death because he persisted in snoring. The verdict of the coronor's jury should be justifiable homicide. We have always thought that snoring ought to be classed in the list of capital offenses, and the accused denied the benefit of the clergy.

THE current Pineville Messenger is an illustrated paper, showing many points of interest in that favored section, which are dilated on at length. Bro. Colgan is doing a great work for his section by bringing its inexhaustible resources to the attention of the outside world.

MARYLAND democrats instructed for Cleveland and Alabama, Tennessee and Michigan endorsed his tariff message. So far not a single State has failed to do likewise.

Lexington is making big preparations for the convention.

We suppose the governor of West Virginia will be satisfied now. The supreme court has confirmed the decision of the two lower courts in the Hatfield cases and Kentucky will hold them to account for their numerous murders committed on her soil.

The last spike on the Louisville Southern will be driven to-day at Guest's Station with great ceremony. The tie will be of cherry wood and the spike of gold.

He showed very conclusively that the Jews did not kill Christ, and a reference to the "Encyclopedia Britannica" shows that it is a fact. It is quite true the Jews after judging our Savior, delivered Him over to the Roman authorities, and insisted that He be condemned to death. Pilot after the first hearing sent him to Herod and that ruler returned Him to Pilate saying he saw nothing to condemn. Pilate, who had reason to fear the wrath of the Jews, being deputy ruler over a turbulent people, who like Paul of old, were kicking against the gods, was afraid to refuse their demands and having acceded to them became in a sense the real murderer of our Lord.

E. C. W. on his Annual Visit to the Old Home

ON C. & O. TRAINS for RICHMOND, May 10.—As the year rolls round and the merry month of May comes, so comes the time for my annual trip to the Old Dominion to see alike my numerous relatives and I would like to say friends. Starting on this delightful trip I left Stanford Tuesday evening, arrived at Lexington a couple of hours later, where the spring races were in full bloom, everything in an uproarious and excited condition and everybody in fine shape for betting. Standing in the Phoenix Hotel office a few minutes in conversation with a friend, I was accosted five times by men who wished, I supposed, to "work a sucker" for a bet on the race, which was then going on. But not being a member of the sporting class and knowing that I had a long trip before me, I cautiously put my little wad of money in the deepest pocket I had and there kept it.

While waiting for the Virginia bound train which leaves Lexington at 11 p. m., I went to see Burk's Currierhouse, or Burk's Horse Show in plain English, at the new Opera House, and for a "rotten" performance, as show people express it, it took the cake. This show, it will be remembered, tried to hold the boards at Stanford and the theatre-going people there should consider themselves under lasting obligations to the management of the Opera House for refusing to let such a snide show exhibit.

My train being on time to a dot I boarded it and in a short time was in the arms of Morpheus. At 8 o'clock the next morning I was awakened by the yell from the porter, "Kanawha Falls, twenty minutes for breakfast." A good night's sleep, feeling hale and hearty, propitious weather, a light heart and not a care on my mind, I was in first-class shape to enjoy the 350 miles ride, through a country of unsurpassing scenery, I had to take before reaching Richmond. My eyes fairly feasted on the gracefully towering mountains; the beautiful, fertile valleys, the rocky cliffs which could be seen on one side, and the rocky, but in some places smoothly running New River, alongside of which the Chesapeake & Ohio Route lies for a 100 miles or more. While all of this was beautiful beyond my ability to describe, still there was something wanting. The grass, instead of being like Kentucky blue-grass was of a sickening yellowish color. At 2 o'clock we stopped at Clifton Forge for dinner. After a hurried meal I enquired for the residence of Mrs. C. C. Parrish, nee Miss Mildred Lewis, who all know was one of Stanford's fairest of her many fair, but was disappointed when I was told that she was not in town. Dinner over, we started out again and a 4 hours' run, with only 4 stops, brought us to Charlottesville, where supper was served. Only a 3 hours' run to Richmond. Most of this was spent in looking at the old country I had known so well in my more youthful days. I was struck with the vast changes that have taken place. The old houses I used to visit are now dilapidated and in some instances torn down entirely, save the chimneys which stand to mark the spot where once a happy family lived. Inquiry of the people in my old neighborhood brought to me the sad intelligence that save a few families the old friends had either died or left for more money-making climes. My thoughts wholly absorbed about these dear friends who had crossed the dark river, I was all of a sudden reminded of Stanford by a pole bearing two flags, a black one above white. This I recognized at once as the Signal Service and that the weather would be warmer. This was at Louisa, Va., where the editor of this paper first saw light, a town of some 600 inhabitants. How quickly my thoughts were then changed to my "Old Kentucky Home," and how plainly I see the displayman at his post running up the flags with the ever ready Joe, the EXTERIOR JOURNAL devil, assisting him. This would produce a homesickness were I to be gone any length of time, but knowing it will be only a few days till I again see her, I think of it all in a most pleasant way. Only one more station and then Richmond. The train does not stop and in a few minutes my destination will be reached. A long whistle from the engine and the brakeman calls out "Richmond." I close this with his yell in order to get it off on a western train which meets this one at this place. My trip has been a most delightful one and more about it I will tell in Friday's issue.

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL

CUMBERLAND GAP.

Attractive Alike to Tourist and Capitalist.

(To the Editor of the Interior Journal.)

CUMBERLAND GAP, May, 1888.—To him who boasts the proud blood of a Southerner, who claims Virginia, Tennessee or Kentucky as his place of nativity, there is no spot in the South to-day more interesting and attractive than Cumberland Gap—the meeting point of these three sister States, the centre of the newly discovered mineral region now before the public, the keystone rendezvous of both Unions and Confederates during the late war and anciently the channel through which flowed that mighty tide of emigration that has overspread the beautiful valleys of the Tennessee, Cumberland and Ohio. Years ago—away back in the thirties—people talked of the Gap and associated it with the early pioneers and settlers of the West; but little did the slow plodders of those days imagine that there was wealth secreted in the ground around—enough to make them and their families rich if they had only known it. But more of this further on.

I left Pineville at 9 o'clock A. M., and after four hours' ride checked my steed at the summit of the Gap—the goal of my cherished journey. Looking back over the Kentucky side the view from the mountain is strikingly grand and picturesque. To the right and left rise the tall peaks of the Cumberland range, covered with trees, a bold front here and there making itself conspicuous. The declivity of the mountain, formerly shorn of shrubbery, by reason of wars' desolating footprints, is now covered with a rich young growth of wood, as if to make the hoary place appear young again. Those blue elevations far away to the north-west are the Pine Mountain and that stream meandering away to the right is Yellow Creek, made notorious of late years as the place where the Turner and Sowder factions enacted some of Bell's darkest tragedies.

It is on Yellow Creek that the first genuine outcroppings of the Cumberland Mountain iron ore is visible and here in the not distant future will be opened some of the best paying mines in the State.

Reminiscence of other days are numerous in and about the Gap. On the large limestone protuberances that overhang the serpentine mountain road, our progressive ancestry from good old Richard Henderson to the latest follower of Joe Mulhattan have immortalized their names in the solid rock for after times to see. The spot where Daniel Boone's son fell and where the "Long Hunters" are said to have camped was pointed out to me also; but I failed to find the house where, according to the custom then prevalent in South-East Kentucky, the love-sick maids and moon-struck youths used to find their Gretna Green.

During the civil war Kentucky was deemed neutral ground and Cumberland Gap was the key to its territory, where both sides found open arms and inviting doors. Thus on account of its natural advantages and commanding position, it was early in the onset deemed an important point in the line of communication between the South and North. During the whole continuance of the war it was in the possession of one party or the other. As fast as one army evacuated it another took possession. The side of the mountain was kept constantly white with tents. The remains of the camps may still be seen in the long, low, sunken ridges that extend around the base. The plotting, counselling and maneuvering that called out the daring spirit of both sides and prompted them to deeds of valor would fill a dozen octavo's, but no battles of any importance ever stained the soil of the Gap. Hood and Thomas made their headquarters here awhile. Bragg and Buell with their fleeing and pursuing hosts passed through to join arms in Tennessee. John Morgan and Zollicoffer with their courageous cavaliers unfurled their standards here, ere like Hannibal of old, they swooped down upon the valleys below. I was shown a room at Dr. Morrison's house, a short distance from the Gap, where all the Union and Confederate generals of any note from Grant and Lee down are reputed to have slept.

By the way Dr. Morrison has one of the nicest places in all the mountains and here I would like to live, if it were nearer the busy world. However it is an excellent place to think of one's grand-parents and the times of long ago. This morning to my exquisite delight I saw one of the old-timed conestoga wagons pass by. It was pulled by six mules and a silvery-haired man was driving. How vividly it reminded me of ante-bellum days. The wagoner—the typical wagoner of yore—alas! there are but few now!—is seldom met with unless it be in these parts, where the people cling with fond devotion to the custom of their fathers and turn their backs on schemes of enterprise. He is a curious specimen of humanity—as much so as Campbell's last man. He dresses quaintly, talks quaintly and is full of the reminiscences of the Gap, through which he has piloted the conestoga eversince "Old Hickory" was president. The future prosperity of the region in and around the Gap is well assured. The spirit of the New South in all of its adorable majesty has begun to electrify the natives through the instrumentality of strangers, and they, with a little encouragement, will put their shoulders to the wheel in earnest.

At the close of the war Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia had no manufactures of any importance, no mills or foundries of any merit to show the people's thrift; no cities with but an exception or two that were worthy of the name. Now look at the cities in these States that teem with a busy, prosperous denizen, Louisville, Richmond, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Birmingham and others that are marching right along after Lowell, Worcester and such towns of the North. Cumberland Gap is located in the very centre of the region over which these cities have mercantile jurisdiction; and with the completion of their prospective railroad lines the Gap will grow with their growth and strengthen with their strength. The coal fields in the vicinity of the Gap will go to swell the business of these marts and the iron ore find in their shops share for utility.

All indications point toward Cumberland Gap's becoming a great railroad centre. Science and skill aided by money are at work there now. A tunnel is in course of construction under the mountain that will give the railroad lines of the South and North favorable connection. Messrs. Mason, Rosser and Rinehart, of Frankfort, have already begun ground in the vicinity and commenced operations. The tunnel will be 3,800 feet in length and when finished will be a masterpiece of civil engineering. Sixteen months is the time allotted for its completion. Oh we're wiser than our fathers! Would they not view with astonishment the stupendous schemes that enter our more modernized brains? In a few years "over the Gap on horse back" will cease to be the dread of the traveler and he will hurry past as tho' there had never been a mountain there. Roads from Abingdon, Morristown and Jellico are being surveyed, which will cut the Corbin branch of the L. & N. here, thus making a thorough trunk line. President Norton and Vice-President Smith of the L. & N. were at the Gap recently and expressed themselves highly pleased at the proposed route and spoke flatteringly of the prospects of the region in and about the Gap.

It is indeed surprising to see with what foresight some men discern a boom. The region lying in close proximity to the Gap has all been purchased by an English syndicate. Mr. Arthur, the manager of the company, tells me that the syndicate is master of 400,000 acres on the Kentucky side and also a large amount on the Tennessee side—mostly mineral lands possessing iron and coal. The syndicate is only waiting for a railroad outlet when it will open up the biggest iron mines in Eastern Kentucky. This is the syndicate which offered to build a new jail and court-house for Bell county if she would remove her county seat to their reservation on Yellow Creek. Southern Kentucky may be twitted for her boasted "silver" mine, which she has failed to reproduce, but there is no doubt of the genuine existence of her iron ore, which will prove the way for a new Birmingham in South-eastern Kentucky. The prophecy of Wendell Phillips that the South in its development would tarnish the glory of her northern sister is fast coming true. You may note it all over the South to-day, but like me you will feel more convinced of it when you stand at the old historic pass and smell the surf from the approaching wave of development and progress.
